Gun terror men put behind bars

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

A MAN who left a schoolboy traumatised after threatening to shoot him in the head has been locked up.

Nathaniel Tume, 19, was a front seat passenger in a car which blocked the path of the 13-year-old, before brandishing what the boy thought was a handgun and grabbing his mobile phone.

The boy had not realised the weapon was an imitation firearm, which was in fact a cigarette lighter.

Since the robbery a year ago, he had continued to sleep with weapons under his pillow as a result of the trauma. In a statement the boy's mother told Ipswich Crown Court that the incident had "terrified" her son, who continued to have nightmares about it.

Tume, of Cangle Junction, Haverhill was sent to a young offenders' institution for two-and-a-half years. He had pleaded guilty to robbery, attempted robbery and possession of an imitation firearm during a robbery.

His accomplice, Thomas Spinks, 22, of Grooms Lane, Silver End, near Witham, was jailed for three years and four months, after pleading guilty to robbery and attempted robbery.

Shake, rattle and roll: there were surprises galore for visitors to Haverhill's new Tesco store last weekend when the supermarket giant's local community champion Claire Bowden, far left, welcomed the cast of Centre Stage Company's latest production, All Shook Up, from left, Lauren Chinery, Billy Allen, Ella Snell and Lee Mays. Shoppers also got their faces painted and met two larger-than-life bunny rabbits. See full story and more pictures – Page 2.

Brewing up bid for village cafe

VILLAGES around Haverhill are being encouraged to set up community cafes with help from the West Suffolk Local Strategic Partnership.

A community cafe could be held in a community centre, village hall, shop, library, or even a school and offer tea, coffee and cold drinks, biscuits and cake, or even a small lunch.

Some community cafes also provide internet access or may be dedicated to a specific age group.

The partnership has created a leaflet offering guidance to villages interested in the community cafe idea.

It gives details of two case studies of successful community cafes already running in Needham Market and Kedington.

John Griffiths, chairman of the partnership, said: "Community life is a vitally important part of living in a village and community cafes have proven to be a good way of assisting and developing this.

"Simply enabling and encouraging people to meet regularly for a cup of coffee, cake and a chat can have real social benefits for a village as a whole so we hope that as many West Suffolk villages as possible will consider setting something up."

For a copy of the leaflet, phone Kirsty Pitwood on (01284) 757109, or go to www.onesuffolk.co.uk/wslsp

Surprises in store as opening fun continues

YOUNG shoppers enjoyed a treat at the weekend when they visited Haverhill's newest supermarket.

Youngsters visiting the new Tesco superstore enjoyed free face painting, an environmental craft workshop and treats from Topsy and Flopsy the bunny rabbits.

The store's community champion, Claire Bowden, said:

"The environmental fun day was hugely popular and there was a great atmosphere at the store. The children seemed to love all the free entertainment and I hope the fun and games made a normal shopping trip that little bit more exciting."

The launch celebrations are set to continue from 11am-4pm on Saturday and customers are invited back to the store where there will be more free entertainment.

There will be a Punch and Judy show, a hook-a-duck fairground stall, face painting and a stilt walker and kids' entertainer, all in aid of the Army Benevolent Fund.

West Wratting FC members will also be in store to receive a donation.

'Off-street' prostitution a growing problem – police

PROSTITUTION businesses are operating in Haverhill, with sexual services being advertised in newspapers, according to a police report.

Suffolk Police Authority will tomorrow consider a report which reveals that officers working on a countywide prostitution strategy discovered a total of 241 premises in Suffolk being advertised as providing sexual services, including some in Haverhill.

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

Others were based in Newmarket and Mildenhall.

Officers are now working to find out exactly where the premises are in a bid to tackle the "growing problem of off-street prostitution".

A team of police officers and other agencies, such as social services and drug counsellors, have been working for almost four years to develop a strategy to tackle prostitution, particularly in Ipswich where several prostitutes were murdered, as well as across the rest of the county.

They have discovered links to organised crime and also illegal sex workers being brought in from other countries. As well as concerns about women being exploited and coerced into prostitution, the report also looks at the implications for people living nearby, along with community safety.

Police authority members are recommended to continue to fund work on the strategy up to 2012 and to do further research into "off-street" as well as "on-street" prostitution.

No prison time for man caught with child porn

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

A MAN caught with hundreds of filthy images of children on his computer has escaped a jail sentence.

Computer repair shop staff in Haverhill grew suspicious after customer Kim Bearstead kept pestering them to mend his laptop. They found the images when the hard drive was scanned.

Bearstead, 55, of Orkney Close, Haverhill, had admitted 17 specimen charges, 16 of making indecent images of children aged under 16 and one of possessing such images, when he appeared at Bury St Edmunds Magistrate's Court in July.

Magistrates ruled their powers of punishment were insufficient after hearing descriptions of the images, involving naked girls aged between 4 and 11.

Although most of them were at the least serious level one on the five-level scale, others were up to level four, showing children involved in sexual activity with adults.

At Ipswich Crown Court, Bearstead was sentenced to a three-year community order, including supervision and the requirement that he takes part in a sex offender's treatment programme.

He was also ordered to stay on the Sex Offenders' Register for the next five years and pay £300 costs.

Kevin Lowson, prosecuting, had previously told magistrates that the offences came to light in February when Bearstead, who has no previous convictions, took his laptop to be repaired at a shop in Haverhill.

Staff became suspicious when he constantly contacted them about the work, found the indecent images and contacted the police.

Mark Thompson, for Bearstead, said the charges related to samples taken from a total of 550 pictures found, some of them duplicates.

He said most of the images were at level one and his client had only viewed them, not stored them or passed them on to others.

He had not been involved in the making of the images, which were all stills.

Cast all shock up over councillor's donation

YOUNGSTERS set to tread the boards later this month will be able to use new stage microphones paid for by a local county councillor.

Cllr Tim Marks, who represents Haverhill on Suffolk County Council, went along to the evening rehearsal of Centre Stage Company's All Shock Up to present four radio stage microphones, costing almost £2,000 and paid for from his Community Locality Fund.

The microphones will be used for the first time at the forthcoming production of youth production, which runs at Haverhill Arts Centre between October 20-24 with six performances.

The 40-strong cast of 14-18-year-olds has been rehearsing since May for the show, which features the music of Elvis Presley, told through the story of the lives and loves of a small American town.

Tickets are on sale at the arts centre box office on (01440) 714140.

Man who threatened teen is locked up

Prosecutor Godfried Duah said the 13-year-old had been confronted as he walked along Chalkstone Way, Haverhill, on October 4 last year while sending text messages from his mobile phone.

One of the two occupants of the front seats of the small dark coloured vehicle produced what appeared to be a handgun, and the boy was told: "What if I put a bullet in your head". The boy was forced to hand over his mobile phone.

The car then drove off but the boy made a note of the registration. The same evening Tume and Spinks had also attempted to rob another teenager in Haverhill.

A 17-year-old, who was with a friend, was approached in Strassbourg Square by the pair and shown the gun, but before any property could be taken they managed to run off and reported the incident to police.

During a search of Tume's home the stolen mobile phone was recovered but the imitation firearm has never been found.

Richard Potts, defending, said Tume had a number of previous convictions but had made a "mammoth leap" in becoming involved in the robbery.

At the time of the incident he had been living with 10 siblings, his mother and step-father and had been trying to "get out of the way", making friends with an "inappropriate" group of people.

He said: "This was obviously extremely serious but was born out of high jinks."

Judge Philip Clegg said: "It was not done for gain. It was done at the time for a bit of what they perceived to be a laugh. They thought it would be fun to see how far people would run if they threatened them with it."

Students take on debut play

PUPILS at a Haverhill school will perform a play set in Nigeria later this month.

Children at Samuel Ward Arts and Technology College will host a rehearsed reading of Egusi Soup, a new play about a British Nigerian family heading to Lagos, on Monday at 7.30pm.

Produced by Haverhill Arts Centre regulars Eastern Angles and Menagerie Theatre Company, the debut play by Janice Okah is described as "funny and poignant".

Tickets cost £5 or £3 for students and can be booked by calling (01440) 714140 or go to www.haverhillartscentre.co.uk. Due to scenes of drug taking and strong language this play is only suitable for ages 15 or over.

Pervert exposes himself to walker

A MAN exposed himself to a woman on a footpath between two schools.

The incident happened at Princess Way, Haverhill, at around 2pm on Wednesday, September 30, on the footpath between Parkway Middle School and Castle Manor fields.

The woman ran away and the man followed her for a short time. He is described as white, in his early 30s, around 5ft 7in tall, with short brown hair and wearing dark blue jeans and a large cream jacket.

Calls in relation to this incident should be made to Pc Maria Allgood at Haverhill Police on (01284) 774100 or Crimestoppers on 0800 555 111.

Residents angry over road plan 'discovery'

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

RESIDENTS are claiming they only learned of plans to build a north east relief road for Haverhill a few days before the closing date for objections.

Ian Johnson, of Roman Way, said he and his neighbours were horrified to discover the road was part of a Local Development Framework for Haverhill over the next 30 years, to run alongside 2,500 new houses.

The proposed scheme would link the new northern relief road, due to be built to link the Cambridge and Bury St Edmunds roads, and continue the link from Little Wratting to the A1017 in Essex.

Mr Johnson said residents had a number of concerns, including the loss of valuable "wildlife corridors" in the town, the possible disruption of Haverhill golf course and a huge development merging the town with Kedington.

Mr Johnson and some of his neighbours lodged their objections before yesterday's closing date, but he feared many people would be unaware of the plans.

He told the Weekly News he had only discovered the plan after seeing an advertisement by developers Carisbroke opposing the option and putting forward an alternative of smaller areas of development instead of a larger one.

Mr Johnson said: "I would not have been aware of what was going on if I had not looked at the website. This was the first time we learned that this was being put forward as policy.

"There is not a route for the road as yet, but sensibly if they don't put it across the golf course it has got to go across lovely open meadows along the Stour brook linking to the East Town Park. There is a lot of wildlife in that area.

"I think Haverhill should develop, but why on one huge site?"

Ian Poole, planning policy manager at St Edmundsbury Borough Council said: "The Core Strategy Submission Document referring to this area says that any development in north east Haverhill will need a north east relief road between the A143 and the A1017.

"A lot of detailed work is needed to determine how this will be provided, including looking at whether existing roads can be used or upgraded.

"The golf course is important both environmentally and for leisure, and it is protected under the policies of the Braintree Local Plan."

He added: "Work on assessing the viability of the road is part of an Area Action Plan for the town, which will be started in the next few months. Any proposals will be widely consulted on with the public."

Lunchtime al fresco: pupils at Castle Hill School enjoy the fresh air and healthy food in the new picnic area.

A bakers' donation makes picnic lunch

PUPILS will be able to eat their lunch al fresco thanks to a donation of an outdoor healthy eating picnic area.

The funding came from family baker Warburtons, which handed more than £400 to Castle Hill School in Haverhill for the project.

Staff will also be educating youngsters on the nutritional value of their lunches.

Becky Baldwin, community cohesion manager at the school, said: "The new picnic area is fantastic. It allows the children to spend more time in the fresh air and hopefully our advice on healthy eating will help them make more informed choices about what goes into their lunch."

Ian Dickerson, Warburtons East Anglia depot manager, said: "Warburtons believe very strongly in our products being enjoyed as a part of a healthy lifestyle and feel it is particularly important to get this message across to children. We are always looking for great causes to support within the area and encourage charities to get in touch."

Housing chief to retire

A HOUSING chief has announced his retirement after more than four decades of helping to provide people with homes.

Steve Cook, chief executive of Havebury Housing Partnership, is to retire next May following a career spanning 43 years in the social housing sector.

He will leave Havebury at the end of May to coincide with his planned retirement at the age of 60 on June 1.

Mr Cook moved to Suffolk in 1977 and rose to become director of housing at St Edmundsbury Borough Council, before leading the transfer of its housing stock during the formation of Havebury in 2001. He became chief executive when Havebury started its work in 2002.

Jonathan Free, chairman of Havebury Housing Partnership, said: "Steve has given over 40 years service to the social housing sector in a variety of roles. For the past six years, as chief executive of Havebury, he has achieved recognition for the organisation as a highly respected landlord and local employer."

The Havebury board of directors will establish a recruitment panel to oversee the appointment of a new chief executive.

Lead plea to dog owners

Sir, I walk my dog everyday – twice most days – for his and my pleasure and health. Without any exception, he is always on a lead.

But more and more he is in the minority. Dog owners need to be reminded that it is an offence not to have their dogs on leads in public places.

Most days we are confronted by dogs running free, who then approach us and which then turns into a potential incident.

My dog is young terrier – full of attitude, hence the lead. I'm reluctant to say anything to the other dog owner as I'm walking for enjoyment, not confrontation. But I do fear that very soon there will be either another dog, or possibly a child, seriously hurt because the owner let their "it's OK, he's very friendly" dog run free.

I also hope the owners do remember they are liable if there was to be a dog fight and any injury was caused.

Also, that the dog involved could be destroyed.

Please use a lead on your dog – don't just carry it.

Warning to drivers over school patrols

A COUNCIL has launched its annual Stop Means Stop campaign, aimed at drivers who fail to stop or are rude and abusive to school crossing patrollers.

Suffolk County Council's campaign runs until October 31 and is organised with help from local authorities to help make drivers aware that patrol officers have the same legal powers to stop traffic as police.

Another misconception is that patrol officers are only permitted to help children cross the road. But changes to the 2001 Road Traffic Act means that a patrol officer can stop traffic to cross all pedestrians, not just children.

In the past year, the county council's road safety team has received a number of complaints from patrols about the behaviour of some drivers.

The complaints include failing to stop, driving around the patroller when they are on the road, using abusive language, threatening the patroller with physical violence and loudly revving the engine while the patroller and children are in the road.

David Chenery, road safety group manager, said: "School crossing patrol officers play a vital role in ensuring school children are provided with a safe route to and from school. They should be able to do this without fear of intimidation and threatening behaviour from inconsiderate motorists.

"Drivers should remember that if their car journey takes them through a patrolled area they should allow a bit of extra time, slow down and be prepared and willing to stop when requested to do so by the patrol officer."

For more information on school crossing patrols, contact road safety on (01473) 265006.

Bradley is named young poet of year

Inspiring: Bradley Cutts, 14, has won several prizes for poetry.

A youngster's poem about adventures he enjoyed on a farm with his dad has earned him the title Young Poet of the Year.

Bradley Cutts is just 14, but had already won prizes three years running at the Aldeburgh Poetry Festival, while still at middle school.

Today, he will travel to the Royal Festival Hall in London to pick up his Foyle Young Poet of the Year award. He now attends Castle Manor Upper School in Haverhill and hopes to carry on writing poems while studying for his GCSEs and A-levels.

Bradley, of Westward Deals, Kedington, wrote his poem The Shoot about when he spent a lot of time with his dad Les on a friend's farm when he was younger.

Bradley said: "My life was a bit like Danny, Champion of the World, which is still my favourite book. We did everything together: beating for the shoot, scrumping, mending cars, and arguing. When my parents split up, writing was an escape, but it wasn't until middle school that I started to write poems.

"Although I was a bit of a terror, my teacher Heather Loxton always encouraged me. Every week, after school, she ran a writing club which I went to – when I wasn't in detention.

"Sometimes, we had a visiting poet come into school and in October, the club went to the east coast for a day of walking on the beach, eating and writing with the poet Michael Laskey. It was inspiring and always a laugh.

"I enjoy school – but probably not for the right reasons. When I was younger, I was often excluded from lessons, which wasn't always a bad thing because I got on really well with our behaviour support teacher, Ken Douglas. I could talk to him. When tragically he died, I wrote a poem which was read at his funeral.

"During my four years at Parkway, I won a prize at the Aldeburgh Poetry Festival three times which, I've been told, is a record. The first time was when I was in Y5. My dad bought me a three-piece suit – everyone else was in jeans!

"Even my mum came and watched. I was so proud. I'm at upper school now, but I still enjoy writing."

Gene discovery is 'life-saving'

BY JOHN DOWNING

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

THE discovery by Cambridge University scientists of a faulty gene linked to more than half of all breast cancers has been hailed by a survivor of the disease as "life-saving".

The gene is also thought to be implicated in half of bowel and prostate cancers and a quarter of ovarian and bladder cancers.

Anna Libby, who has survived breast cancer and now runs the Cambridge-based Breast Buddies support group for sufferers and their families, welcomed news of the discovery.

She said: "We are talking about saving lives – and that's what my group does. Breast Buddies is for anybody who has had, or has, breast cancer."

Her breast cancer was oestrogen-related, not genetically-related, but she said: "The reality is that there are several different types of breast cancer."

"There are people within my group who have genetically-related cancer."

The gene, NRG1 (neuregulin-1), works as a "guard", suppressing cancerous tumours. If it is missing or faulty, tumours can grow.

Dr Paul Edwards, of the department of pathology, who discovered the gene with colleagues, said the discovery provided "vital information" about how cancers spread.

He said NRG1 could be "the most important tumour suppressor gene discovery in the last 20 years".

Vital information: Dr Paul Edwards.

The breakthrough is thought to be the most significant step forward in cancer gene research since another gene, p53, was discovered in the 1970s and found to be implicated in cancers in the late 1980s.

The latest research was published in the journal Oncogene and funded by Breast Cancer Campaign and Cancer Research UK.

Arlene Wilkie, director of research and policy at Breast Cancer Campaign, said 12,000 UK women die from breast cancer every year.

She said the research is "a major step forward" in understanding the genetics of cancer and could open up new strategies to improve diagnosis and treatment.

■ Breast Buddies meets from 11am on the first Friday of the month at 51 St Andrew's Road, Cambridge. For more information visit www.breast-buddies.org.uk

Benefit match for local football stalwart Jim

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

FOOTBALLERS will kick off in a charity match on Sunday in aid of a former striker who still holds his old club's top scoring record.

Jim Thompson had a very successful playing career during the 1980s, with Haverhill Rovers, Saffron Walden and West Wrating, who he also went on to manage.

Now in his 50s, Jim, who still lives in Haverhill, is suffering from pancreatic cancer and players from all his former clubs will be putting on their boots to help boost a fund for him to take a fishing trip to France, while he still feels strong enough to do so.

Michael Bavester, a former Haverhill Rovers goalkeeper, is one of those at West Wrating organising the match between West Wrating Veterans and the Rest of the World Veteran, which will kick off at noon at West Wrating.

There will be a big raffle on the day, with prizes including several signed shirts, televisions and vouchers, with entertainment provided by singer Gary Jeffs and a barbecue will be held afterwards.

Mr Bavester said: "I played with him myself and he was a very good player. He was in the Haverhill Rovers side which won the league in 1978 and he is still their top scorer of all time.

"We just want to raise as much money for him as we possibly can. He came out of hospital last week and is hoping to go on one last fishing trip to France. He is also a keen golfer and Haverhill Golf Club are raising money for him as well."

Cup of cheer: Dee Newman, who organised the coffee morning at Beaphar UK in Haverhill.

Dee's cup of cheer

STAFF at a pet product company brewed up plenty of cups of coffee to raise £142 for a cancer charity.

Haverhill-based Beaphar UK took part in the World's Biggest Coffee Morning in aid of Macmillan Cancer Support, with Dee Newman, a new starter at the company, tasked with organising the event.

Together with coffee and cakes, accounts lady Kathleen Pettit made a home-made pizza, which went down very well and business manager Sue Huggett made a delicious home-made chocolate cake.

The funds raised help pay for support and advice, family support workers and in certain areas, Macmillan nurses.

Game on: Edward Baker-Duly as Hermann Hauser and Martin Freeman in a scene from Micro Men.

Curator stars in BBC drama

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

MACHINES and the curator of a Haverhill museum will appear in a major BBC production to be screened tonight.

Many computers and electronics props sourced from The Centre for Computing History will appear in Micro Men, which will be screened on BBC 4 and also features museum curator Jason Fitzpatrick who plays the part of David Johnson-Davies.

Martin Freeman (The Office) and Alexander Armstrong (Armstrong & Miller) star in this affectionately comic account of the race for home computer supremacy in the eighties.

Micro Men gives an amusing insight into the brilliant but eccentric characters that triggered the beginning of the UK computer revolution, documenting the lengthy rivalry between maverick visionary Sir Clive Sinclair (Armstrong) and his former colleague Chris Curry (Freeman), as they go head to head to achieve domination of the growing home computer market, with Sinclair's ZX Spectrum and C5 computers battling Curry's BBC Micro.

Micro Men, a one-off drama, is part of Electric Revolution, a season of programmes giving viewers a unique insight into how developments in technology have shaped our lives over the past 50 years.

The Centre for Computing History supplied all of the computers and technical props for the programme. In fact, they also supplied one of the extras – largely due to his seventies hairstyle – when curator Jason Fitzpatrick spent a week at West Drayton filming the Acorn scenes. Jason said: "It was a unique experience – just watch out for me dancing at a seventies-style party."

"On a more serious note, I also designed and built from scratch the prototype BBC micro that is seen in the film. The original no longer exists, so I had to build it based on two old photos of the machine and guidance from the original designers."

"It's all been quite breathtaking, but this latest production was particularly special for me, as it deals with two of my heroes from that era."

A trailer for the film can be viewed on the centre's website: www.computinghistory.org.uk.

The centre has enjoyed a very busy year advising and supplying machines for a number of TV documentaries and dramas as well as being one of the principle stars at Channel 4's The Gadget Show Live.

It will also star at the Haverhill Business Exhibition, which will offer local people their first real opportunity to view exhibits and enjoy old favourites such as Space Invaders and Pacman.

Could a charge boost the city?

The proposal to slap a congestion charge on drivers in Cambridge has triggered anger – but a leading think tank believes it could be a boon. CHRIS ELLIOTT reports.

In a jam: tough decisions need to be made about Cambridge's road congestion.

If it happens, it will not be before 2017 – but Cambridge's proposed congestion charge is still a major bone of contention.

Workers are worried that if it does come in, they will be hugely out of pocket, and small businesses fear it could drive them to the wall.

Cambridgeshire County Council's cabinet has backed a bid for £500 million from the Government's Transport Innovation Fund to pay for better public transport services.

As a first stage, the council plans to ask for early confirmation of £25 million in Government funding for Chesterton railway station, which would begin to be built in 2012 – three years earlier than planned.

At the end of 2010, a full bid for the remainder of the £500 million package is planned. This will include a 'trigger point' for a congestion charge to be introduced – a move that will need to be agreed by the public, businesses, partner authorities and the Government itself.

The earliest a congestion charge would be introduced is 2017, the county council insists, adding "and only as a last resort if the record-breaking TIF investment into transport does not help and the agreed trigger is reached".

The cabinet backing for the bid will be debated by a meeting of the full council a week today, but in the meantime, a think tank which specialises in transport issues has weighed in to the debate.

The Centre for Cities, which focuses on ways to help cities to improve their economic performance, believes it could have genuine benefits.

Lena Tochtermann, one of the organisation's analysts, said:

"Cambridge is one of the fastest-growing and most successful cities in the UK. But a side effect of this success is congestion. Last year, transport consultants Steer Davis Gleave estimated congestion costs Cambridge approximately £70 million – and this could rise to £170 million by 2021. Congestion will get even worse as Cambridge continues to grow in the recovery.

"Congestion costs local businesses money. And although some will face congestion charge fees as a result of the scheme, a well-targeted scheme will make journeys and commuting faster – and local businesses more efficient. Knowing that your deliveries will arrive on time has a significant monetary value. With quicker transit times, many employees will become more productive – adding to a business's bottom line."

She said that if a congestion charge scheme were to succeed, it would have to be "designed well".

"Stockholm's scheme, for example, was successful at reducing congestion and improving air quality. Impressed by these results, the city's residents approved the scheme after a seven-month trial period.

For a Cambridge scheme to succeed, the county council must make sure the scheme covers the right area and that charges are set at the right level.

"If charging gets the go-ahead, Cambridgeshire stands to gain a once-in-a-generation boost to local transport. A 'yes' to congestion charging could unlock £500 million, which would substantially improve public transport in Cambridge, including a new station at Chesterton, an extension of the guided busway to Addenbrooke's and Trumpington and 180 kilometres of cycling route upgrades. All of these would be in place before a charge came in.

"£500 million represents a large sum for Cambridgeshire – about 70 times the size of the county's current Local Transport Plan funding. Whether or not charging is right for Cambridge, with Government debt at 56.6 per cent of GDP, the next government, whatever its political colour, will need to cut back on public spending.

The funding on offer is a now-or-never opportunity for crucial transport upgrades in the area, such as the new station at Chesterton. Alongside the up-front investment, the income from congestion charging can help fund transport improvements, such as night buses, in the years to come.

"The timing of a decision could not be trickier. Even before the current recession, congestion charging has proved extremely unpopular. Last December, Manchester's residents voted no to congestion charging – following the West Midlands' and Edinburgh's rejection of charging schemes. Cambridge is now the only city left considering the introduction of a charging scheme.

"A 'no' to charging in Cambridge would mean the end of city congestion charging schemes. Then where next for Cambridge in the fight against gridlock?"

New legal 'hub' to offer help to those with debt problems

ADVICE experts in Cambridgeshire are witnessing a major increase in calls about debt – and they have now launched a new project to help.

The county's Citizens Advice Bureaux said one in three of all the cases they handle was debt-related – an increase of 30 per cent on the same time a year ago.

The statistics were disclosed last week at the launch of Advicehub, a new project aimed at giving people in Cambridgeshire better access to free legal advice.

It will use 'mini hubs' around the county, touch-screen kiosks and online technology to provide information for people in need.

It is backed by funding from the Big Lottery Fund, and the launch at Cambridge's Emmanuel College – chaired by BBC Radio Cambridgeshire presenter Antonia Brickell – was attended by staff from CAB branches, health chiefs, business leaders and local council representatives.

Linda Hutchinson, manager of Fenland CAB, said: "CABs in

THE Weekly News has teamed up with Barclays Money Skills, which aims to help people improve their confidence and ability to manage money. As part of the partnership, we are highlighting projects that offer financial help in the community. Today, we focus on the launch of Advicehub, a service offering free legal advice.

Cambridgeshire are seeing more and more people who have worked all their lives and have never previously been in a position of needing to claim benefits or being unable to pay their bills.

"The impacts of this recession are touching people from the entire social spectrum. Nationally, the increase in people seeking JobSeekers' Allowance after losing their jobs is 99 per cent. In Cambridgeshire, which is traditionally seen as an affluent area, the increase is a staggering 282 per cent on last year's figures."

In the first three months of last year, CAB advisers dealt with 5,972 debt inquiries – in the first quarter of this year, the figure climbed to 7,638, up 28 per cent.

A CAB spokeswoman said:

"Debt causes real hardship to families, leading to repossession of homes and homelessness, harassment by creditors, pressure from bailiffs and the fear of not knowing what will happen next. A rise in stress and mental health problems caused by debt and unemployment is being seen by GPs.

"Effective debt advice via the CAB service not only removes this pressure, enabling families to regain control of their finances, but also eliminates the economic burden on local authorities of dealing with homeless families.

"Specific action taken by the CAB service has enabled people to avoid repossession – currently it is helping approximately 15 families a week to keep their homes, through court representation."

Force may face up to 20pc cuts

BY RAYMOND BROWN

Email: weeklies@cambridge-news.co.uk

CAMBRIDGESHIRE Chief Constable Julie Spence is poised to make swingeing cuts of up to 20 per cent as she takes a swipe at politicians.

The county's lead officer is preparing contingency plans for cuts of between 10 and 20 per cent.

The revelation comes as the county braces itself for massive spending cuts because of the huge national debt.

Mrs Spence warned that the impact of cuts on her already cash-strapped force would inevitably mean fewer frontline police officers.

She said: "Anything between 10 and 20 per cent is what we've projected is likely to be the outcome, whatever government gets into power, in relation to where we think the financial deficit lies."

Mrs Spence went on to say that politicians who promised that the frontline could be protected "probably lack a dose of reality".

Impact: Chief Constable Julie Spence has warned of frontline cuts.

Asked if there would be fewer police officers on the streets, she said: "The honest answer is yes, there probably will be."

Mrs Spence has consistently called on the Government for a £2 million cash injection to pay for 100 extra officers.

But with cuts on the cards, it looks like she will have to deal with the influx of migrants and an increasing population on less money and fewer officers.

Mrs Spence, who became Chief

Constable in 2005, gained a national profile after speaking out about an increase in migrant crime.

She first sparked debate in September 2007 by raising the issue of the impact of immigration on Cambridgeshire, which made it the fastest-growing county in the UK.

And immigration is likely to increase further, creating a 21 per cent rise in Cambridgeshire's population by 2031.

Official projections showed there could be almost 800,000 people living in the county by the fourth decade of this century.

This population explosion would be fuelled by an influx of 13,500 migrants each year, according to the Office of National Statistics (ONS).

Increased birth rates and internal migration levels will contribute to growth.

If current trends continue, the county's present population of 608,000 will grow to 677,000 by 2016, and 789,000 by 2031.

The force currently has around 1,400 officers.

Mrs Spence was speaking on Panorama: The Truth About Cuts on BBC One.

Massive stroke led to a life of helping others with disabilities

I WAS walking across a busy road when I felt as if the side of my head had been hit with a sledge-hammer."

That's how Andy Kent describes the moment he suffered a life-threatening cerebral haemorrhage, causing a massive stroke that robbed him of the use of his limbs on his right side.

At the time, Andy was just 24, with a wife and two young children dependent on his working income. But now, 27 years later, and despite his resulting "challenges", the 52-year-old from Swavesey is a successful businessman who dedicates much of his time and money helping other people with disabilities get a foothold in the world of work.

Andy describes his ordeal calmly, but you can hear the catch in his voice as he describes how the day of his stroke was destined to change his family's lives forever.

"I was working in a small family-run garage on Edgware Road in London when I fell ill," he recalls. "I had been delivering a car to an MOT testing station up the road and was walking back when my head started to hurt.

"Somehow I managed to get back to the garage just in time to collapse on the floor, and later woke up in hospital."

In his characteristically frank way, Andy describes the time following his admission to hospital as "a little bit hazy".

"There are a lot of grey areas, but eventually I was told by the doctors I had a severe migraine and sent home to take it easy for a couple of days," he says.

"Luckily, as I was being discharged, someone suggested a brain scan 'just in case'."

"About a week later – by which time I was getting quite ill with my right side starting to fade, losing control of my arm and leg and with my speech and sight going – I got a phone call from the hospital asking me to go for the brain scan."

Andy says the nurse that looked after him while he had the scan was shocked he was still standing, considering the size of the bleed and the length of time it had gone undiagnosed.

"She asked us to wait to speak to a doctor about the scan, but Andy being Andy, I decided to go home and wait. Within an hour of getting back they phoned us and said I had to go back straight away and were sending an ambulance for me.

"After three days in the hospital they injected dye into my bloodstream to find out how bad the damage from the bleed was.

"But I had an adverse reaction to the iodine in the dye which put me into a coma. That lasted for about six weeks."

In fact, Andy was in such a bad way that the doctors told his wife, Jan, that she should prepare to say goodbye. "At one stage they told her to come up to the hospital because they thought I was going.

CHARISSE Aldridge, 17, first came to Andy's Kars more than a year ago. She suffers from kidney problems and feared that as a result she would never be allowed to work in a garage.

"I really enjoy working here, as everyone is very supportive and understanding and treats me no different to everyone else," she says. "I was told by the careers team I visited that because I am female I would never be able to manage, let alone be allowed to work, in a workshop."

Emma Mutton, Andy's daughter and office manager at the firm, says: "It's great that Charisse, through determination and support, has proved everyone wrong, passing her level 1 NVQ motor vehicle and maintenance repair qualification, and starting level 2."

She made the hour-and-a-half trip to be told I was in intensive care and she should start making arrangements.

"But it's okay, because I'm still here! No, seriously, I'm sure it was a very difficult time for Jan. My son was only 4 and my daughter 2 at the time, and it was a very long way from home, so it must have been terrible for her."

And even when the worst was over, Andy says the strain on his family didn't stop.

"I got frustrated because I couldn't do things and I used to make silly phone calls to Jan and tell her that I was going to leave and that she should come and get me. I couldn't even walk properly."

In a typically determined manner, however, Andy made giant leaps in his rehabilitation and, just a year after his stroke, undertook a 997-mile walk from Land's End to John o'Groats, raising more than £24,000 for a new scanning unit to better detect illnesses such as strokes.

And while that may seem like a fairy-tale ending to his story, unfortunately the reality was not quite so Hollywood.

"Once I got out of the hospital I went back to working," he explains. "But one of my big challenges, and something that affects a lot of people with brain injuries, was my mood swings. I tend to find it difficult to control them and have to work really hard at it.

"And I have a tendency now to be very frank, and often what I think comes straight out of my mouth without my brain being involved. It didn't endear me to bosses and employers, and I found myself jumping from job to job."

It was in 2002 that Andy finally had enough of the uncertainty. He had been managing a firm in Cambridge for a while and had seen it turn into a big success, but the owner sold it without telling him, leaving him unemployed yet again.

He says: "I could have gone to court and tried to get money out of them I guess, but I decided to go the easier route and start my own, competing firm but with the emphasis on employing people with disabilities and difficulties. That business was Andy's Kars."

"I deliberately didn't set it up as a not-for-profit enterprise. I wanted to show it could be a success despite some of our staff having bigger challenges than the norm."

Today business is booming, with Andy's whole family employed at the firm's base in Viking Way Industrial Estate, Bar Hill.

"Jan is the company secretary while my daughter Emma is the office manager, and my son Russell is workshop foreman."

Andy says that the many awards they win each year for their work is one of the measures of their success – in 2007 they won a prestigious national award which saw them described as the UK's most disability-friendly employer – but for him the real measure has been the demand they have for training places.

"Up until now we've been funding all the extra things needed to keep people in the garage out of our own pocket, and on average have one person a day with us. Normally youngsters, as I call them although sometimes they are up to 30 years old, are with us for around 12 weeks. We support some of them going on to two days a week and others into full apprenticeships.

"But the problem is that we want to expand the number of places we can offer, and that's where our newest project should come in."

Andy and his family are now in the midst of setting up a separate charitable sociable enterprise called Andy's Ark to allow them to apply for more funding and continue their training efforts.

"We want to expand to other garages – we actually have plans for doing that as soon as we can and adding three sites within the next four years. Clearly that's about us expanding our own enterprises, but I would also love to help other businesses to develop the same principles and company ethics.

"It's simple: the more businesses we get helping disabled and disadvantaged people, the more people we have off sick and disabled Government funding and it helps the individuals too by giving them a purpose in life.

"We all have bad days, I know I certainly still do, where even picking up a pen from across a desk can be difficult and frustrating, but it's about saying there is no such thing as 'can't do' and learning to make positives out of negatives.

"I've had kids come here unable to get on the bus without a carer, and just six weeks later they've rolled up at work all on their own, having made a huge step forward. And the thing is that I really do know how that feels and I can truly appreciate how difficult those steps can be.

"My teaching tools include reminding people that there is always life after any incident or mishap. You are only given something like that to deal with because you can cope with it. It is then you have to prove that you can cope with it and use your experiences to inspire others.

Andy's Ark is about giving someone a chance to pick up a tool without saying they can't saying 'yes you can', you just have to believe and you'll find a way to do it.

"They may not do it the same way as you and I – with both hands – but that's not to say they can't do it. Just because you can no longer write with your right hand, doesn't mean you don't have a left."

The next step in Andy's long-term plan is to try to persuade investors to come forward.

"We are already talking to people like MP Andrew Lansley to try and get a bit of momentum and get our story out into the public domain," he says. "But to be honest, I'd love to get someone like Richard Branson on board to raise our profile."

When quizzed as to how he can be so certain his latest venture will be a success, Andy's answer is disarmingly simple:

"You don't get anything without first having a dream. You've got to have the courage to ask the questions. People think you're crazy. But no one gets anywhere without believing in their dreams."

Trust top in region for managing cash

'Doing our best': Julian Herbert.

BY JO DEEKS

Email: editorial@haverhillweeklynews.co.uk

NHS Suffolk has been rated as the best primary care trust in the East of England for managing its money.

Independent auditors have ruled NHS Suffolk makes the best use of resources and has the best financial management.

Julian Herbert, director of finance at NHS Suffolk, said: "Sound financial management of healthcare resources means better and more efficient healthcare services for the people who need them."

"This is a clear message that we are doing our best at managing NHS healthcare for the people of Suffolk."

This is the result of the latest assessment of NHS financial performance undertaken by the Audit Commission, published on October 1, with auditors assessing England's 152 PCTs under a new and more demanding 'use of resources' (UoR) regime.

This assessment considers how PCTs manage their finances, workforce and assets to deliver value for money, and how they govern themselves.

In common with the rest of England, no PCT achieved a top score, but notably, NHS Suffolk performed best out of the 14 PCTs in the East region.

This news follows yesterday's annual general meeting held by NHS Suffolk, at which it revealed a £49.7 million increase in healthcare spending during 2008-09 and overall management costs set at just 1.9 per cent of total expenditure – lower than the regional average.

Carers' scheme wins two-year funding

CARERS of adults in Cambridgeshire will benefit from an independent and confidential advocacy service.

Speaking Up in Cambridgeshire has received funding from the county council for two years to develop the service for adult carers.

The project, which was launched this month, will link with carers' groups initiated by Crossroads Care Cambridgeshire.

The county-wide organisation supports unpaid carers who have a caring commitment to an adult relative, neighbour or friend who needs support because of their sickness, age or disability.

The Carers (Equal Opportunities Act) 2004 entitles carers to have both their care and needs assessed and considered.

The aim is to ensure that carers have access to education, employment, training and leisure.

Carers can contact Speaking Up directly or be referred by a third party and arrange for support in their own homes or wherever is convenient to them.

For more information, contact Reiz Evans on reiz.evans@speakingup.org or call (01223) 555800.

The Haverhill & Stour Valley branch of Cats Protection have a number of cats looking for new homes. Some cats arrive as strays, others are unwanted or simply abandoned. Often a cat will come from a loving home where due to circumstances the owners can no longer keep them.

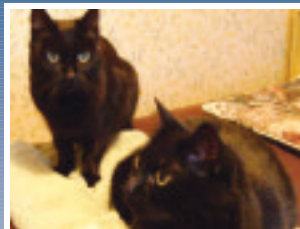

On arrival all cats are given a complete health check by our vets, which includes worming, flea treatment, vaccinations and any other treatment that is necessary to ensure that when that new loving home is found they will leave in the best possible health. The welfare of the cat is top priority and the branch visits prospective owners to ensure that the right cat is with the right person.

It is Cats Protection policy that we never put a healthy cat to sleep we will always find that loving home no matter how long it may take.

If you can offer a home to any of the cats please contact 01440 730096

Young stars get ready for rockin' night

TEENAGERS will be combing back their quiffs and putting on their blue suede shoes to get All Shook Up with sounds that captivated music-lovers almost half a century ago.

Centre Stage Company's youth section – a cast of 40 aged between 12 and 18 – will take to the stage at Haverhill Arts Centre in the show from October 20-24.

Elvis Presley may have died before most of the cast members were born, but they certainly have performing in their blood – Lauren Chinery and Lee Mayes, who play the lead roles, have grandparents who were involved in the stage company's very first production 40 years ago. They are Les and Jean Ager, Jill Chinery, and Greta Mayes, who is still playing the piano for the company.

All Shook Up is Lee's first major part for the company, although he has been in many shows already and is also a talented choreographer.

The company also has a new director for the show, Amy Letcher, who has been on the stage since she was 5. Amy's grandfather, Arnold Leroy, was also in the company's first show back in 1969, and her father, Andy, has probably had more leading roles over the years than anyone. Her mum,

BY JO DEEKS

Denny has also been in many of the shows over the years. Amy is well known on the Haverhill stage. She has had several lead roles, including a brilliant portrayal of Charity in Sweet Charity in 2006.

Lee's daughter, Karen takes charge of the music once again and this time the cast will be accompanied by a rock 'n' roll band playing all The King's hits. Adam Chinery, who played the role of Oliver for the company four years ago, moves off the stage to take the lead guitar part in the band.

The show is set in the 1950s in mid west America in a dreary town where having fun and playing music has been banned by the town mayor.

But a roving roustabout arrives in the town on his motorbike and wows all the ladies. He fixes the jukebox and gets the town, singing, dancing and loving again.

The story has lots of twists and turns as the people of the town start falling in love but not necessarily with the right partners. The whole plot is held together with the music of Elvis Presley to make a lively and funny musical.

Gentlemen are back in town

IT may have been set in Italy, but last month Shakespeare's Two Gentlemen of Verona went stateside. Cast, the Cambridge University student theatre company, has been hopping across the water once a year for the past decade to perform the Bard's plays to American audiences. To mark their landmark anniversary and the 800th anniversary of Cambridge University, they put on their most ambitious series of shows yet. On September 1, they embarked on the 4,000-mile tour. Cast performed in 12 different universities, schools and professional theatres in 10 states. And never wanting to leave out their Cambridge fans, they're now back in the city, and have been performing on home ground at the ADC Theatre. Shakespeare's comedy tells the love story of Proteus and Valentine and their affections for Julia and Silvia. Over the course of the play, the lovers meet several servants, two clowns, three forest-dwelling outlaws and a small dog. It runs until Saturday at 7.45pm (Sat matinee at 2.30pm). Tickets £6-9. Contact (01223) 300085, or visit www.adctheatre.com

A murderous night at Abbey

HEAD to historic Anglesey Abbey in Lode next month and you might find a chilling surprise. Expect a tingle in the spine as, for the first time, OARS Theatre Group stages a murder mystery evening in the house. The house will be the setting for an informal buffet supper to celebrate the launch a new TV series, Into the Unknown, in which star Jeff James, performs mind bending tricks and illusions. Those attending the evening will be special guests at this launch party. Will the tricks go wrong? Will secrets be revealed that even a mind reader could not guess? After the "murder", guests will return to the award-winning Redwoods restaurant to attempt to solve the clues over dessert and coffee. Tickets for the night, which starts at 7.15pm on Friday, November 6, are priced at £30 and are available on (01223) 810080.

Isaac Newton and you've never heard him

NEARLY 300 years after his death, Isaac Newton is still a hugely powerful figure.

What drove him to make the discoveries which changed the way we think? How did his heretical religious views shape the foundations of his work? Why did he threaten to burn down his mother's house?

Using Newton's own words and those of his contemporaries, Let Newton Be! shines a new light on one of the world's greatest scientists.

Craig Baxter's highly compelling play shows Newton as the young boy measuring the speed of wind, the isolated Cambridge scholar practising alchemy in secrecy, and the expert political operator who ruled the Royal Society with an iron fist.

Let Newton Be!*, directed by Patrick Morris, is on at the Robinson Theatre, Hills Road Sixth Form College in Cambridge on Friday, October 23, at 7.30pm

Tickets are £7.50/£5. Phone (01223) 511511 or visit www.junction.co.uk

Glory and Fame for a singing sensation

POP sensation Rachael Sage returns to the UK next month, fresh from her knock-out work on Fame.

Her latest single, Too Many Women, is used on the soundtrack to the remake of the all singing, all dancing 80s TV show. The track, which also appears on Sage's critically-acclaimed album, Public Record, has been remixed by Damon Elliot (of Pink and Beyonce fame) especially for the film, which hit the big screen last month. It is featured alongside tunes from artists such as Santigold and Sam Sparro. Sage is an East Village, New York, songstress, poet and 2005 Independent Music Award winner for best singer-songwriter. A self-taught pianist, she then went on to receive the 2005 Outmusic Award for best songwriter, pick up second prize at the Unisong International Songwriting Contest, and reached the finals of the 2007 Starbucks Music Makers Competition. In short she is a self-taught virtuoso, and her similarity to artists such as Tori Amos, Laura Nyro and Fiona Apple has been noted. Uncut says she has "catchy, well-crafted songs . . . a muscular and hugely talented studio pop songwriter", while Mojo describes her as "... warm, intelligent . . . Sage hits somewhere besides the bed-sit and the cellular of noise and it does you good". All that talent was proved when she recently appeared at the Edinburgh Festival to sell-out shows.

Back on tour: Rachael Sage will be playing in Cambridge this weekend.

She will be returning to the UK next month for a handful of live dates, including a gig at Acoustic Routes at CB2 Cafe in Norfolk Street, Cambridge, on Saturday. Also making an appearance on the night will be Acoustic Routes favourites Colvin Quarmby, with their powerful original songs and often ingenious lyrics, along with Pavlov's Cat playing melodic, rolling songs with an emphasis on dynamics and organic sounds. Tickets are £8 and the show starts at 8.30pm. Go to www.acousticroutes.co.uk

Some shrubs easier to move than others

As you tidy up your beds and borders this autumn, take a look at what has overgrown its allocated spot and also what didn't work in a particular place this year.

Late autumn is a good time to move large shrubs and other plants, while they are dormant, to more suitable places or even into pots until you can decide where you want them to go.

The ones which are most easily moved are those with fibrous roots – masses of thin roots which don't go very deeply into the soil. You can dig right underneath the root system and it doesn't matter if a few roots are broken, as there will be plenty of others left to take hold and become established.

Shrubs that are easy to move include camellia, Mexican orange blossom (Choisya ternata), dogwood, broom, heather, forsythia, fuchsia, hebe, spiraea, rosemary, mock orange (Philadelphus), kerria and hydrangea.

Before you start, decide where you want the shrub to grow and dig the ground where you are going to plant, adding some bulky organic matter.

Dig a circular trench around the shrub with a radius of between 30 and 45cm (12-18in) depending on the size of the shrub and keep digging down until you reach the end of the roots. Then push the spade under the shrub and lever it gently to ease out the remaining roots. You may have to do the same on the other side and go round the shrub several times before it lifts out.

Once the shrub is completely loose, rock it forwards, away from you, and place a large piece of sacking or heavy duty polythene sheeting underneath it. Then rock the plant towards you and manoeuvre the sacking underneath it so that the shrub is in the centre of it. Tie the sacking tightly around the rootball and lift the whole thing out, before giving it a good water.

It's best to transfer the shrub straight away. Dig a hole slightly larger than the rootball and put the shrub in it, ensuring that it's at exactly the same level in the soil as it was before. If it's too low, put some more soil in the bottom of the hole. If it's too high, make the hole a bit deeper.

Once you have a perfect position, slide the sacking out from underneath the shrub and mix a handful of blood, fish and bonemeal in with some of the soil you've dug out, using it to fill in the hole and give the shrub a good soaking.

Firm the plant in gently with your heel, to take up any air pockets.

Shrubs which are more difficult to move include buddleia, the smoke bush

by Hannah Stephenson

(Cotinus coggygria), berberis, weigela, lilac and flowering currant (Ribes).

Shrubs with tap roots, which grow very deep and have fewer roots, are more difficult to move as it's harder to dig them out and if you damage the roots there will be fewer to establish themselves in their new position.

If you are determined to move a prize shrub which has tap roots, dig a wide trench around it, filling it with organic matter and leave it for 12 months.

That way it will produce new roots which grow out into the organic matter, so that it forms a new, stronger rootball which will compensate if you snap the tap root when you lift the shrub out.

Once you have replanted your shrub, keep it well watered until it has established itself and add a layer of organic mulch to protect it over the winter months.

PLANT OF THE WEEK Sea holly (Eryngium)

These striking architectural plants are best grown in full sun in dry, gritty soil and are therefore ideal for coastal gardens. They lift any border, forming basal rosettes of leaves that are often prickly, with attractive silvery-white veins. From midsummer until early autumn they bear branching stems of round or cone-shaped violet-blue flowers with narrow grey-blue bracts which are good for drying. Smaller varieties can be grown in rock gardens, while taller ones go well in the herbaceous border, where their skeletal forms can be appreciated throughout winter. Protect sea hollies from excessive winter wet, especially in cold or exposed gardens. Plants can be divided in spring. Eryngiums make up a large group of annuals, biennials and deciduous and evergreen perennials.

Good varieties include E. x tripartitum, a perennial which grows up to 90cm (3ft), and E. x oliverianum, which has dark green spiny leaf rosettes, blue stems, and flowers from midsummer to early autumn.

GOOD ENOUGH TO EAT Cranberries

Ever since Delia recommended cranberries to her fans there has been increased interest in these small red fruits which make the most delicious jellies and cordials. They are low-growing, evergreen, hardy shrubs which need acid soil, but do well in pots or raised beds where garden soil doesn't have a low enough pH or is not boggy enough for their survival.

Buy young plants and set them 30cm (12in) apart, in a sunny spot, to eventually merge to form a good ground cover crop. They need little maintenance, just clipping back to ensure they stay compact and bushy. If you don't have many berries, apply a liquid ericaceous fertiliser in mid-spring and water the plants with rain water when you can, keeping the soil moist.

Once fruits have been picked in the autumn, before the first frosts, tidy them up by giving the plants a trim.

THREE WAYS TO:

Ripen green tomatoes

1. Spread them in a cardboard box with a ripe apple or banana and put the box somewhere warm. Alternatively, put them in a paper bag with a ripening fruit and stick it in a drawer.

2. If a frost is forecast, gently lift the whole plant and hang it upside down in a garage or cellar where temperatures are above freezing.

3. Place up to four large tomatoes in a jar or bag along with a ripening fruit and then seal it. Beware that the combination of moisture and warmth can encourage mould so it is best to put holes in the bag or regularly open and check the jar.

WHAT TO DO THIS WEEK

■ Place dustbins full of water under greenhouse staging. They warm up during the day, releasing their heat at night and act as storage heaters.

■ Plant out hardy primulas raised from seed or divisions.

■ Harvest cobnuts, hazelnuts and filberts when husks begin to yellow, but before they start dropping.

■ Continue to pick fast maturing vegetables, such as French beans, runner beans, courgettes, cucumbers, peppers and tomatoes, to prevent them becoming stringy, tough or bitter.

■ Where grass growth is thin and sparse, over-seed now with a suitable grass seed mixture.

■ Lift onions and shallots once the foliage has started to die back.

■ Take cuttings of rosemary, lavender, bay and hyssop.

■ Take hardwood cuttings from gooseberry bushes to increase stock.

■ Sow sweet peas in a cold frame or the greenhouse for early summer blooms next year.

■ Plant new perennials while the soil is still warm, but moisture levels are increasing.

■ Wait for the first frosts to hit dahlias and cannas before lifting the tubers or rhizomes.

■ Buy spring-flowering bedding plants, such as bellis, primula, wallflowers, and violas.

Why sell the traditional way?

Get Estate Agents to value it and put it on the market.
Show people around the property (mostly "nosy parkers" & sightseers).
If no offers received after 2 or 3 months, reduce price.
Show more people around.
Eventually accept an offer at between 5 & 10% off the advertised price.
Hope the sale doesn't fall through (over 30% of sales don't reach completion).
Once price agreed, wait a further 3 months for sale to complete.
Work out how many £000s it has cost you in reducing the price, making mortgage payments, paying Estate Agents fees and legal fees since you started the process (on average, 7 months ago...)

Sell your property the CXG way...

The simple alternative

- Pay no Estate Agent's fees
- Pay no Legal fees
- No further mortgage payments
- Have cash within days (Instead of months)

YOUR GUIDE TO MOVING HOME

1 Moving home can be a complicated business and, in the hectic run to the big day, it is all too easy to forget something vital. The Property News offers their readers this handy checklist that should help avoid major pitfalls. We suggest you tick off the items as you deal with them...

WITH FOUR WEEKS TO GO:

- ☐ Get estimates from removal companies, checking that comprehensive insurance cover is available against damage or loss. Is there a packing and unpacking service? Confirm the date of your move with the firm you have chosen.
- ☐ Check on your home contents insurance policies to ensure that you are covered for the move, and covered at your new address.
- ☐ Make arrangements for your gas and electricity meters (plus water meters where relevant) to be read and all your appliances to be disconnected on the day of your move.
- ☐ Arrange to take over gas and electricity at your new address, and make sure that all appliances will be properly fitted, plumbed or connected.
- ☐ Notify British Telecom and ask them to make the necessary arrangements for a final account at your present address, and for taking over or installing telephone facilities at your new home.
- ☐ Arrange for change of address cards to be printed.

WITH TWO WEEKS TO GO:

- ☐ Confirm all arrangements, times etc, for meter readings, disconnections and reconnections, with authorities and with your buyer and seller.
- ☐ Make sure you have a good stock of packing materials, including sturdy boxes and plenty of string and sticky tape.
- ☐ Begin to throw out unwanted items from attics, wardrobes. What you really don't want you may as well dump now, or send to charity. It's a great time for a good sort out!

WITH ONE WEEK TO GO:

- ☐ Send off change of address cards.
- ☐ Arrange and pay for automatic redirection of your mail by the Post Office.
- ☐ Cancel and pay up accounts for routine delivery services such as milk, groceries, fuel and your Cambridge Evening News. Re-organise these deliveries for your new address.
- ☐ Defrost refrigerators in preparation for move and, if you are moving a freezer and its contents, turn it up to maximum for a couple of days before you move.

WITH ONE DAY TO GO:

- ☐ Complete your packing except for those items you are likely to need overnight, and prepare a picnic for moving day.
- ☐ Have a large enough cash 'float' available to deal with unexpected expenses, and make sure you have collected documents and valuables together in a safe place.
- ☐ Cover carpets which are being left behind, so as to minimise damage during furniture removal.
- ☐ Check through previous lists to make sure nothing has been overlooked, then enjoy a worry-free early night!

2 ON MOVING DAY:

- ☐ Strip beds and pack bedding and nightclothes.

Scrappage is extended

THE Government this week announced a £100 million increase to the vehicle scrappage scheme, to build on its success in boosting consumer demand.

So far 227,750 orders have been placed through the scheme. The increased funding enables the scheme to fund a further 100,000 vehicles, bringing total budget to £400 million and covering up to 400,000 vehicles in total. The extension continues as a Government and manufacturer partnership, with matched funding providing the £2,000 discount for each scrappage order.

Alongside the increased funding the Government will work with manufacturers to extend the benefits to van owners with vehicles over eight years old rather than the current 10-year requirement. Car owners will also get a boost, with the age qualification changed by six months to extend the benefits to cars registered on or before February 29 2000 (V registration). The scheme will come to an end in February 2010 or when the funding runs out, whichever is sooner.

Business Secretary Lord Mandelson said: "This is not a blank cheque to the auto manufacturers but recognition that there is still a short-term challenge to boost demand and confidence in the sector."

Volvo, Nissan and Kia were among those to applaud the extension. In general the dealership chain and the car manufacturing sector have been highly enthusiastic about the extension.

Criticism of the scheme has centred on the fact that the UK's garage and parts firms will experience a significant downturn in their business as thousands of older cars disappear from UK roads.

One of the UK's leading car parts suppliers claims garage repair shops are closing down at an unprecedented rate. A survey by Car Parts Direct revealed 28 per cent of garage owners believed they were unlikely to be able to survive the next two years as a result of the scrappage scheme.

The scheme has resulted in 227,500 cars, some in perfectly good condition, being scrapped. Another 175,000 face a similar fate over the next six months.

For repair shops, MoT centres and car parts suppliers it's bad news. Cars over 10 years old are the vehicles most likely to need to be serviced and repaired. Job losses are "inevitable".

Mark Cornwall of Car Parts Direct said: "We should be tightening our belts rather than throwing money away like this."

Golf is 2010 'Towcar of the Year'

THE new Discovery 4 has taken home two accolades at the Caravan Club's Towcar of the Year Awards 2010, which took place at the Royal Automobile Club in London last week. These are the first awarded to the new Discovery 4, which went on sale earlier this month.

The Discovery 4 won the "Best Towcar over £32,000" class and the "All Wheel Drive over 1,800kg" category, beating the likes of the Lexus RX450h, Mercedes Benz E and C-Class, Volvo XC70 and XC60 and the Isuzu Rodeo. The testing was carried out at Millbrook Proving Ground to determine the car's towing ability, dynamics when hitched, acceleration and braking.

Other winners included Volkswagen, who claimed the £16,000-£20,000 price category as well as the prestigious title of "Caravan Club Towcar of the Year 2010" with the sixth generation Golf which went on sale in January.

The winning model, the Golf SE 2.0-litre TDI 138bhp, particularly impressed the 10 judges with strong performances when towing in a variety of situations, practicality as a caravanning family car and high quality cabin.

Volvo has an accident-free car design

WILL motoring in the future ever be accident-free? It could be – especially if Volvo has anything to do with it.

Electric cars, for example – now seen as good for the climate and thus important for tomorrow's city drivers – are already being taken apart and destroyed by the Swedish firm in its pursuit of higher safety standards for this type of vehicle.

But the firm's focus remains on preventing accidents, and it has set itself the short-term target that no-one will be killed or injured in a new Volvo car by 2020.

An impressive target – but not an impossible one, given Volvo's spread of research into both car occupant, and pedestrian, protection.

"Zero is the one and only solution for us," says Jan Ivarsson, head of safety strategy at Volvo.

"As the leader in car safety, we can't accept that people are killed or injured just because they want to transport themselves from A to B.

"Our aim is to come so close to zero that one single car accident is defined as a disaster, not an acceptable part of our daily lives."

So what exactly does Volvo have in the pipeline to prevent a collision? Firstly, it is looking at linking with other car makers to produce a safety system whereby one car literally "talks" to another if there's the potential for danger.

Ivarsson says a future Volvo will be able to "speak" to an oncoming vehicle, along the lines of: "You and I are about to collide head-on. If our drivers don't react, we have to do something. Let's steer clear of the danger."

The key to cars acting automatically to avoid a collision is finding a common 'language', the safety chief adds, to ensure the detection-prevention technology is reliable.

"The air around us is already charged with communication, most of it used for pleasure or convenience," says Ivarsson.

"Adding traffic safety communication to this existing architecture is a far more sensible route than trying to invent and agree on a completely new 'language' for communicating in the traffic environment."

Volvo's all-new Volvo S60, due here next year, will come with the firm's next generation of preventive safety technology – a collision warning system that includes auto braking and pedestrian safety measures.

Previous Volvo systems have helped the driver avoid collisions with other vehicles, but the S60's fitment takes a giant step forward with a function that also boosts safety for unprotected road-users.

The system can detect a pedestrian who has walked out in front of the car, as well as automatically braking to avoid the person at speeds below 15mph if the driver does not react in time.

This new automatic braking function cuts in when a driver fails to react, and advances stopping power from a previous 50 per cent to full braking power.

On the electric car safety front, Volvo's research will ensure any future such vehicles it produces meet the firm's extremely high safety standards.

It will ensure the battery package, for instance, is protected effectively in a crash – Volvo has already theoretically identified all the electric-related safety scenarios in the stages before, during and after a collision.

After a full study of these, the company will create solutions for handling each and every situation identified, guaranteeing that all of its future electric cars fully match Volvo's renowned safety standards.

Rather special: The Citroen DS3.

Citroen DS3 set to debut at upcoming MPH Show

CITROËN'S radically-styled DS3 supermini is to make its UK debut with a special appearance in the all-action Top Gear Live stage-show at the MPH Prestige & Performance Motor Show next month.

Ahead of its UK launch early in 2010, DS3 will feature in a 'live advertisement' as part of the Top Gear show – presented by Jeremy Clarkson, Richard Hammond and James May.

DS3 is the first model from Citroën's brand new DS line – a distinctive product range consisting of three attention-grabbing cars that will feature the very best of Citroën's 'Creative Technologie'.

DS3's intelligent cabin design makes the most of its compact dimensions to offer a spacious and comfortable interior with five full-size seats and a generous 285-litre boot. As well as combining nimble handling and a supremely comfortable ride, DS3's five available engines are powerful and refined, yet impressively fuel and CO2-efficient.

Insignia VXR arrives

THERE was an almost tangible air of excitement at Marketts this week with the arrival of the hot new Vauxhall Insignia VXR.

Based on the 2009 European Car of the Year, the high-performance Insignia is Vauxhall's first VXR model to adopt 4x4 technology, using a bespoke chassis developed through an extensive test programme at the gruelling Nürburgring race circuit in Germany.

Your CV

When you send your CV off to a potential employer, remember that you won't be the only one. Hundreds of other people could be applying for the job as well.

So what are you going to do to make you stand out from the crowd? Why should an employer take a chance on you instead of someone else?

Your CV is your first real chance to sell yourself to a potential employer. Most employers will scan through a CV in about 30 seconds so you need to grab their attention from the start - and make them want to invite you for an interview.

There are five main areas to consider when writing your CV:

- Make sure your CV looks the part. Your CV should look clean and tidy - don't scrawl it out on a piece of A4 paper. If you haven't got access to a PC or printer, ask a friend or use your local library. Use a good quality paper and steer clear of fancy borders and front covers.
- Watch out for silly spelling and grammar mistakes. They make you look lazy and show employers that you don't really care. It's not difficult to do a spell check on your PC and if you're really stuck then don't just guess, reach for a dictionary. Get a friend to read through your CV for you - a second opinion is always useful.
- Make sure your CV is well organised. When you list your previous jobs, make sure the dates are correct and try not to leave any gaps. If you took time out to go travelling then say so - employers won't mark you down just because you've tried something new.
- Don't waffle. Remember that employers don't have time to read every word of your CV. Long paragraphs and sentences put people off, so try bullet-points to break up text. Make sure your CV is no longer than two pages long - employers don't want your life history, they just want to see that you've got what it takes to do the job.
- Don't list any failures. Employers have enough trouble finding someone who is right for the job - they don't need help finding reasons not to employ you. If you have to include a mistake from your past, make sure you show the employer that you learnt something from the experience.

Keep it simple

Personal details

Start off with your full name, address, date of birth, home and mobile phone numbers, email address and nationality. If you are offered an interview, the employer will want to get hold of you so give him as many options as possible.

Summary/professional profile

This is the No1 area for selling yourself. Set out your main skills and personal qualities but keep it interesting and tight - one paragraph should do to cover everything.

Education and qualifications

List your qualifications and education history, with the most recent first. You don't need to list the grades for each exam you have passed unless they were exceptional results - simply listing the number and type of exams you've passed is fine. Also, list any relevant professional organisations you belong to and training courses you have been on.

Work experience

Start with your most recent position and work backwards, giving addresses along with start and finish dates. Set out your main responsibilities, duties and most importantly achievements, along with any skills you picked up or improvements you made while you were there. This is a really important section in your CV so make it count - but don't waffle.

If you have not had a full-time job before, detail any part-time jobs you may have held or any placement you have been on.

Other skills

Set out any computer skills you may have and the software you are most familiar with. Can you type, do shorthand or speak a foreign language fluently? If you have a driving licence, let the employer know. If it's clean, tell them.

Interests & hobbies

Briefly list what you get up to in your spare time. Put down any positions you hold in clubs or associations, along with any responsibilities and achievements.

References

Make sure you have at least two people (including one from your previous or current job) who will tell an employer what a thoroughly nice person you are and what a potential asset to the company you would be.

If you want to list them now make sure you include their name, job title, postal & e-mail address and contact phone numbers. Alternatively, just put "Available on request" so the employer knows to follow up references at a later date.

Add a covering letter

The main aim of a covering letter is to encourage an employer to give you a chance. You want them to read your CV, so sell it to them. You should always enclose a covering letter when applying for a job - most employers won't consider you unless you do.

A covering letter should let the employer know why you are interested in the job and why you think you can do it.

The hints and tips below should point you in the right direction:

- Keep it simple. A covering letter should be short and to the point - no more than six paragraphs.
- Mention the job. If you are replying to an advert, mention what the job is and where you saw it. The company may be advertising for other positions and it may not be clear which job you are applying for.
- Sell yourself. Explain why you are the perfect candidate for the job. Show off your strengths and experience. Refer to your CV - if it goes missing then at least an employer will know that you've sent it.
- Check it for mistakes. A silly spelling mistake in a covering letter is likely to cost you your chance of getting an interview. Also, make sure it is addressed to the right person in the right department.

A covering letter can be just as important as a CV in getting you an interview. It's your first point of contact with your potential employer - so make it count.

Saffron Walden 5 Haverhill 5
Under-15
HAVERHILL were breathing a sigh of relief after the energy-sapping performance at Saffron Walden. With only the bare 15 available, they managed to last out a match played at a blistering pace on a rock-hard pitch in hot conditions. Henry Brown scored their try after 25 minutes only for Walden to reply with a pushover try on the stroke of half time. Further plusses arrived with the successful debuts of hooker Scott Lowe, Garath Richards in the second row, and Ben Ranshaw on the wing.

Haverhill 5 Ely 43
Under-13
AFTER a tentative start to their first start on a full-size pitch, Haverhill's new under-13 side more than held their own. However, consistent pressure which forced some basic errors gradually wore them down. Ely had three tries on the board before Doyle Onley rounded off an excellent run with Haverhill's only try, although Huw Llewelyn, Justin Hall and Adam Slack played well.

■ The new side trains on Wednesday evenings and Sunday mornings at Haverhill Rugby Club and anyone interested is invited to join in.

>>FOOTBALL: MINI LEAGUE

Thurlow 7 Spartak 78 1
Cambs Mini League, under-10B
THURLOW produced their best performance of the season so far, despite missing several chances. George Jenkinson struck four times, with Josh Santry, Kyle Dangerfield and Harry Simpson completing the scoring as the home side created lots of space for themselves – man-of-the-match Luke Burnham excelling with his passing – without really finding their killer touch.
Walpole 2 Thurlow 5
Cambs Mini League, under-9
FINLAY Plant and Joseph Morley scored two apiece as Thurlow recorded their first win of the season. However, they were grateful to keeper Toby Egan for producing a man-of-the-match performance to keep them ahead.
West Wratting 2 Sawston Utd 1
Cambs Mini League, under-9A
WEST WRATTING'S pressure

Four-some Jenkinson

finally paid off just two minutes from the end. Skipper Lewis made a bit of space for himself in a crowded area to fire into the left-corner of the net to seal the hard-fought victory. Brophy had earlier given them the lead with a well-taken goal.
Saffron Walden 0 West Wratting 2
Cambs Mini League, under-10B
ONLY the woodwork and some outstanding goalkeeping prevented West Wratting from recording a more comprehensive scoreline. The breakthrough came five minutes before the interval when Prince Mutswunguma slipped past two defenders before firing home. He added a second with a cool finish into the bottom corner.

>>FOOTBALL: COLTS LEAGUE

West Wratting 17 Chatteris Tn C 1
Cambridge and District Colts League, under-12D
WEST WRATTING made the ideal start when Ellis Wiffen scored after two minutes. But 11 minutes later it was 5-0 and at half time the home time were home and dry at 7-1.
Charlie Ellam(2), Wiffen again, Charlie Ripp, Jake Murphy and Jesse Luff scored in the first half. After the break Luff scored three more, Ellam, Jack Harvey (2), Dion Whitrid (2) and Scott Bishop completed the rout.
Godmanchester Rov 1 Withersfield 7
Cambridge and District Colts League, under-12 Knockout Cup
INITIALLY it appeared Withersfield were in for a tough day as they could not make their dominance count. But just before half time Cameron Kidd broke the deadlock and after the break the visitors cut loose.
Jack Ferguson, an own goal, another from Kidd, Jason Moore and two from Jamie Lingard wrapped up a comprehensive win.

Bottisham 0 Haverhill Rovers 8
Cambs Girls League, under-15
HAVERHILL showed no signs of rustiness after three weeks without a game, with Stacey Roper and Katie Schulz causing all manner of problems for Bottisham.
Roper struck four times and Schulz added a hat-trick as they dominated the scoring. Charlotte Westrope added the final goal, but Bottisham spurned the chance to get on the scoresheet themselves when they slammed a late penalty against the bar.

league last season. However, they did not lead until virtually the last kick of the first half when Earle Lambert scored the first of his two goals. Even when they went 3-0 up Witchford refused to buckle, scoring two cracking goals and forcing Aaron Miller into a brilliant save that proved pivotal. Michael Torode (2), man of the match Robert Foster (2) and Ben Murray were the other scorers.
■ Wratting, already holders of the colts league Merit Award, were presented with their Fair Play Award at half time in the Blue Square Premier League match between Histon and Eastbourne BorOUGH.

Each of the 18 players connected with the success received an FA Fair Play Medal and the club collected £200.
Haverhill Rov 5 Haddenham Rov 1
Cambridge and District Colts League, under-14B
RESHUFFLED Rovers bounced back from going behind to ease to victory.
Jack Elliott equalised going into half time, giving his side the impetus to turn on the style in the second period.
He added a second, Ricardo Robinson scored twice – rounding off the move of the game for his first goal – and Keegan Ayre completed the scoring.
Withersfield 8 Saffron Walden 0

WITHERSFIELD took revenge for defeat in their opening game of the season by thumping Walden in the cup.
Sam Demartino opened the scoring and once Henly Kennedy fired in a 20-yarder, Withersfield were in full flow.
Oliver Stevenson, Joe Baker, Nathan Banks and, in particular, Mitchel Burr were outstanding.
St Ives Rangers 2 Castle Camps 5

Raffell looks on the bright side

HAVERHILL skipper Ryan Raffell counted the plus points after his side made Ely battle back before progressing to the second round. The stubborn hosts, from a level lower, had been pegged in their own territory before a good intercept by Jake Plumridge in the Haverhill 22m led to a breakaway try, exchanging passes with scrum-half Simon Lester before going over himself. But Ely hit back after a scrum on the Haverhill 10m, with Kieren Kennett punching through the tryline after a neat lay-off, and Sam Saunders Hewett kicked the conversion.

>> RUGBY UNION

Haverhill 12
Ely 24
Junior Vase, first round

Haverhill were dealt a blow with an injury to Chris Claydon, and things got worse for them a minute before half time.

Another flowing backs move with a switch from blindside to openside ended with Saunders Hewett breaking the line from 30m out and touching down, and he converted his own try.

Injuries affected Haverhill again after the break, with Ricky Harris and Matt Stephenson both forced off, and when Ben Jones was sin-binned on 58 minutes, Ely made the extra player tell, with two unconverted tries.

Ed Jackson got the first of the two, and Ed Fahy got the second, smashing his way over the line.

Haverhill earned some late consolation with a first try for the club from Grant Deeks, and injured captain Raffell said: "They deserved to win, but it was only a two or three-point game. We got a lot out of it."

JOE Davis clinched the all-important point as Haverhill secured victory in the Curry Cup at Colchester Golf Club. Champions: Haverhill's Curry Cup squad. CP

Haverhill had gone close in a number of county events, losing in the semi-finals of the Tolly Cobbold Cup and were runners-up in the Parks Trophy.

They faced Felixstowe and, after the morning foursomes, had a 4-2 lead. However, Felixstowe fought back in the afternoon singles, winning the first three points.

Dave Perrett and Gerry Scott clinched wins and Lee Chandler followed up with another success. It went down to the final three matches, and Robert Rudge and Graham Ashcroft added more points, so it all went down to captain Davis.

From being four down after seven, he was two up after 15, and he had to halve the 16th to secure Haverhill's win, and with the hole halved in bogey fours, Haverhill's 9½-8½ success was earned.

Dave Pipe took Division One of the IFF Challenge with nett 66, Geoffrey Bush claimed Division Two with nett 65 and Peter Deane won Division Three with nett 67.

Haverhill Rov 2 Bugbrooke St Michaels 3
FA Vase, first round

BEN Lawrence created two goals with long throws, but Haverhill conceded three times against Bugbrooke and went out of the competition at Hamlet Croft.

The hosts suffered an early blow when attacker Shaun Banham was forced off with an ankle injury, before Paul Abbott's poor header was pounced on by a visiting forward and he beat goalkeeper Dave Walton.

Scott Wilby and Lee Salmons both went close on more than one occasion to equalising, but the away side doubled their lead with 11 minutes remaining.

A Lawrence throw forced a Bugbrooke defender to put through his own goal to give Haverhill hope, but a third goal knocked the stuffing out of them.

Sam Holmes grabbed a consolation deep into stoppage time.

Rovers, who were at Stanway in the Ridgions League, Premier Division last night (Wednesday), travel to Leiston in the league on Saturday.
